Project Title Hand-in-Hand Resource Mothers Program

Project Description This is a mentoring program for pregnant and parenting teens designed to enhance birth outcomes for mother and baby and to prevent health disorders by promoting good health behaviors for mother and baby during the first year of the baby's life. The program promotes the establishment of a stable home environment by mentoring the teen parent and working with the father of the baby and the teen's family. The Resource Mother (RM) continually develops connections for the teen to the available community supports. Through the supportive relationship with the RM and the RM's modeling of certain behavior/skills, the teen is provided new information about prenatal care, child development, health behaviors, relationship skills, and decision making. Program goals include: reducing the incidence of low birth weight babies born to teens, reducing the number of women entering poverty ~~by keeping teens in school, graduation, and/or working, and delaying any repeat pregnancies, and~~ increasing/enhancing positive parenting skills through modeling, home visiting education, and information. $15,464 was requested for this program.

Location Services available to LMI individuals/families on a City-wide basis.
